Module Aim and Intended Learning Outcomes

Overall aim of the module

The overall module aim is to:

- Enable students to employ historical perspectives in the fields of public health and health services.

Module Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of the module a student should be able to:

1. Evaluate the historical dimensions of ongoing public health issues;
2. Demonstrate understanding of the historical context of public health and health services, in both the advanced industrial economies and the global South;
3. Recognise and assess the nature of historical debate and the contested status of historical claims; and
4. Analyse original documents so as to be able to assess a significant historical question.

Indicative Syllabus

Session Content

The module is expected to cover the following topics:

- Public health in the industrialising West in the 19th century, with a particular focus on urban environment and sanitation, on sexual health, and on the development of public health law;
- The beginnings of tropical medicine in the context of empire, including the new science of malaria and approaches to its control;
- The emergence of the medical profession, and the making of 20th century health systems within Western welfare states;
- The coming of international health concerns in the post-colonial era, and the transition to global health, viewed through a study of international health organisations, eradication programmes and the primary health care movement;
- Public health in the 20th century world, including the new public health focus of health promotion and chronic diseases, with a focus on themes of sexual health and substance use.

Teaching and Learning

Notional Learning Hours

Type of Learning Time	Number of Hours	Expressed as Percentage (%)
Directed self-study	120	80
Self-directed learning	0	0
Assessment, review and revision	30	20
Total	150	100

Teaching and Learning Strategy

Learning is via directed self-study. A guide to studying the module is provided, together with access to a range of study resources, discussion forums and online webinar discussion sessions. The textbook that supports this module provides a detailed set of learning objectives at the start of each chapter, and also offers focused reading and various learning activities. Students are expected to complete three reflective blogs as they work through the textbook and to engage in the discussions these generate. All students can use online discussion forums to obtain tutor support, and can make use of the LSHTM on-line library resources. Written feedback is provided on the submitted assignment.

There will be a number of online webinar discussion sessions, including an introduction to the module and a discussion of the assignment with opportunities for questions and answers about the essay. Several online lectures covering the module content are also available on the Moodle page as optional extras for students who may find them useful.

Assessment

Assessment Strategy

This module is assessed via an assessed assignment (100%) to be submitted no later than May 31st.

The 100% summative assignment for this module can be submitted only once annually, no later than 31 May (including resits) and must be submitted via the online Assignment Management System.

Please note that a separate assessment fee may be payable in addition to the module fee. Further details will be communicated as soon as the final decisions are known.

Summative assessment

Assessment Type	Assessment Length	Weighting (%)	Intended Module Learning Outcomes Tested
Assessed Assignment	Please see the Assignment Instructions for details.	100	All

Resitting assessment

Resits will accord with the LSHTM's Resits Policy.

The Resit assessment will be the same assessment type as the first attempt (see previous table).

Resources

The following materials are provided to students after registration for this module once a year in October:

- A brief guide to studying the module;
- The textbook Public Health in History by Virginia Berridge, Martin Gorsky and Alex Mold;
- A reading list including details of both required and optional reading and links to selected papers;
- A list of useful websites;
- Access to the LSHTM Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) - Moodle, where students can access a range of materials, including the materials listed above; participate in module-specific discussion forums and online webinar discussion sessions and access the LSHTM online library resources.

All materials are provided in e-format and may be accessed via the LSHTM VLE – Moodle.

Teaching for Disabilities and Learning Differences

The module-specific site on Moodle provides students with access to the majority of the module learning materials, including a study guide and online reading list (detailing both essential and recommended readings), and additional resources including supplementary exercises and optional lecture recordings. In some cases, module materials include a textbook that is made available to students in e-format. All materials posted up on Moodle areas, including computer-based sessions, have been made accessible where possible. The LSHTM Moodle has been made accessible to the widest possible audience, using a VLE that allows for up to 300% zoom, permits navigation via keyboard and use of speech recognition software, and that allows listening through a screen reader. All students have access to "SensusAccess" software which allows conversion of files into alternative formats.

For students with special needs, reasonable adjustments and support can be arranged – details and how to request support can be found on the University of London Worldwide website at: Inclusive practice and Access arrangements | University of London
